Risks/Disclaimer

Our goal is first to invest in public companies that exemplify authentic American values and only then to seek competitive returns. Accordingly, our stringent research criteria eliminates numerous stocks with potential for higher returns. In addition, companies acting on higher ethical standards may be willing to sacrifice short-term profits, which could result in lower stock prices. Investing in the stock market involves substantial risks including the potential loss of principle. Investors should carefully consider their investment objectives, their risk tolerance, and the expenses of investing in our portfolios. Past performance is no assurance of future results.
